

OHIO CREDIT UNIONS LAUNCH NEWLY-REDESIGNED MONEYANDSTUFF.INFO FINANCIAL EDUCATION WEBSITE

Ohio's credit unions have launched a completely redesigned version of the popular website MoneyAndStuff.info to meet the financial education needs of today's kids, educators and parents.

MoneyAndStuff.info is a free financial website from the experts at Ohio's credit unions. The Ohio Credit Union League created the original website in 2008 in part to help educators meet financial literacy standards set by The State of Ohio. The newly-redesigned branding and website updates the information for today's educators, parents and kids.

The free lesson plans, activities, coloring pages and other resources are available to educators, community groups, parents and students. Visitors from around the world use MoneyAndStuff.info to learn about money, watch videos and play fun money-themed games and activities.

MoneyAndStuff.info was originally created to help solve one of Ohio's most pressing problems: teaching young people how to responsibly manage their finances. MoneyAndStuff.info also helps educators fulfill The Ohio Core Personal Finance Requirements.

Ohio's credit unions work every day to help people improve their financial health. MoneyAndStuff.info is another way to fulfill this mission. The new site is designed to be easy to use on every device, including laptops, tablets, and smartphones.

Young people are accessing the Internet on a variety of devices. Ohio's credit unions want to make sure that the free financial education they have to share is easily available to kids and teens on their phones and tablets, wherever they are.

The newly redesigned site is also available in a format that is easy to use on classroom and home computers. And it's easier than ever to share the content on social media.

The site includes new information to address today's use of online banking and debit cards. Other new features include online coloring pages and explainer videos to reach today's Internet-savvy kids. Other resources include a long list of money-themed books for every age, online arcade games, printable coloring pages, and fun activities for classrooms and home.

The Ohio Credit Union League invites all Ohioans to explore www.MoneyAndStuff.info to learn about smart ways to manage your money and to teach children about finances.
